SEASON 1928.

DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE

OF

FRUIT TREES AND ROSE TREES

GROWN BY

EDENVALE NURSERIES, LTD.

In sending out our Catalogue for the coming season, we beg to say that our Stock is very extensive, healthy, and in a thoroughly satisfactory condition. We particularly invite a trial by those with whom we have not yet dealt. Purchasers are cordially invited to inspect our Nurseries, and trees can be selected at any time of the year.

Customers who cannot personally select their trees, and who order through the post or otherwise, may rely on trees of the Best Quality being sent.

All previous Lists and Catalogues cancelled.

Customers are requested to observe that trees of the same age on the same Stock, but different varieties, are not always of the same size, as varieties differ somewhat in their habits of growth.

Customers are requested to indicate plainly the Railway Station (or if through the post, the Post Office) to which the trees are to be sent.

Packing materials are charged cost price. Every care is exercised in packing trees to ensure their safe arrival.

NO WARRANTY.

Notice.—We guarantee to deliver all Roses offered in this List true to name, and to be healthy plants on leaving our Nurseries. Beyond this we give no warranty whatever, nor can we undertake to replace any plants that may fail, as we do not consider such failures to be under our control.

Please Note.—Orders will be executed on these conditions only.

Unknown customers must please accompany their orders with remittances, or be good enough to favour us with satisfactory references. A remittance should accompany all small orders. Cheques, Postal Orders and Notes made out to "Edenvale Nurseries," and payable at Krugersdorp.

All Cheques must carry exchange.

SPECIALITY.

In these days the tendency towards specialisation of one particular branch of an industry has largely developed. There is no doubt that any Nursery confining itself mainly to one or two lines of the Nursery business can send out a better quality article at a lower price than a firm that deals equally in all the multifarious branches of Nursery work. That most important branch, viz., the propagation and cultivation of ROSE TREES has received our careful attention and study for many years.

PLANTING SEASONS.

We make a speciality of sending Rose Trees, lifted free of soil, during the months of January and February, and from May to end of August.

We would like to point out from long experience that Rose Trees planted during the rainy season give far better results than those planted when the cold drying winds are about.

WHEN ORDERING.

It must often happen that some particular tree cannot be supplied from its being early sold out. It will be well to add a few extra names from which the deficiency may be made up.

All Fruit Trees and Rose Trees sent out by "Edenvale Nurseries" are Transvaal grown, therefore far hardier than those grown in a hot and forcing climate, and more likely to give better results.

SPECIALLY PRICED ROSES.

When these are included in Orders they will be charged as single Roses.

CULTIVATION OF ROSES.

ROSES are too often crowded in among shrubs and herbaceous plants. The "Queen of Flowers" resents this treatment, and refuses to unfold her charms in such unsuitable positions. Intending planters should therefore select a portion of their garden in a more favourable position, and devote it to Roses alone. The soil best suited for Roses is a deep, rich and rather retentive loam, and if resting on limestone so much the better. The site being chosen, the ground should be trenched to the depth of eighteen inches, keeping the surface soil to the top; plenty of well-decayed farmyard manure should be worked in as the trenching proceeds. The trenching should be done early in the autumn, so that the soil will have time to settle before planting is begun.

PLANTING.—The ground being prepared, the holes may be set out (for dwarfs) at two feet apart every way, or if blooms for show are required the plants should be planted four feet from row to row, and three feet from plant to plant. If the roots are found to be dry when received they should be soaked in water for a time to swell out the shrivelled roots before planting. Slightly shorten the coarser roots and cut away any broken or bruised portions. Care should be taken to spread out the roots horizontally, and they should cross each other as little as possible. Do not plant too deep—keep the union of the bud with the stock about two inches under the surface. Standards should be planted about 6 inches deep, and should be securely staked as soon as planted. When the planting is completed a good mulching of half-decayed manure should be spread over the surface around each plant.

If it is not possible to plant immediately they are received, the best plan during open weather is to unpack and heel the plants in.

PRUNING.—In pruning, for a general rule cut hard back to an eye pointing outwards for the stronger growing kinds, the weaker growers and some of the Teas may be left a little longer; July is early enough to commence pruning. If the Roses are for decorative purposes only, they may be left longer in the pruning. Climbing Roses should have the strongest summer shoots laid in, and at pruning time cut back not more than a third of their length, as it is from these vigorous young shoots that bloom for the coming season is obtained. All weakly growths and exhausted shoots should be cut clean away. With Roses on walls it is best to take them down, prune and regulate the growths, and replace them. Treat Pillar Roses in the same way. Banksians are best pruned directly after flowering. The Mosses and Summer Roses only require old and superfluous shoots removing in summer (after blooming), and then tip the shoots back in July; Austrian and Penzance Briars require the same treatment, long shoots being left almost entire till flowering is over. China Roses should be cut back hard, leaving all young wood.

WATERING.—Growers for exhibition should prepare some liquid manure and apply once a fortnight, with a watering of plain water in between if dry weather prevails. Syringing in the evenings of warm days if beneficial.

INSECTS.—Caterpillars and Maggots should be destroyed by hand-picking; Green Fly is easily got rid of by syringing with some insecticide. Do not syringe when the sun is shining on the Roses. Mildew may be kept in check by spraying sulphur over the affected parts, and if the soil is dry give a copious watering. Pests of all kinds are much more likely to attack sickly and neglected plants than those that are in a strong healthy condition, and careful attention at all times is therefore the best preventive of both fungoid diseases and all kinds of insect pests.

Roses planted during the winter months should be cut back, and each plant should be covered with grass or sacking as a protection against the drying winds.

LIST OF FRUIT TREES.

King of Tompkin's County.

BRIEF HINTS ON PLANTING.

THE first essential to successful fruit culture is a careful preparation of the ground, which must be thoroughly trenched to a good depth, working in at the same time a liberal supply of manure. A good hole, some 2 feet square and 2 feet deep, must then be dug for each tree, and partially filled with good rich loam. On this the tree should be placed, with the roots well spread out, first cutting away any broken or damaged portion; fill in with more loam, which must be tightly pressed round the roots, and complete the operation by supplying a stout stake to each tree. A good top-dressing of manure during the winter is beneficial, and serves as a protection from frosts.
